

PUT PEP INTO TEAMS FOR CHAMBER'S CAMPAIGN

Workers at Banquet Hear Talks on Necessity of Community Spirit

THE Chamber of Commerce is a community effort to live up to the Golden Rule.

Your reward in building your Chamber of Commerce comes from the satisfaction of doing what you dreamed could be done.

The stones that you lay in building up your own community will some day become sacred.

Clubs are wonderful assets for a community—if they function.

Tell the world! Yes, but tell them the truth.

Los Angeles started out in life with a few houses and a ballyhoo. Look at her now. The Chamber of Commerce did it.

(Will G. Farrell, in his address at the Chamber of Commerce banquet.)

"The Chamber of Commerce, which has existed for the past 400 years, is the natural successor of the old town meeting that the pilgrims brought with them when they landed at Plymouth Rock," declared Will G. Farrell, Los Angeles insurance man and volunteer worker for the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, in his address to the team members and guests present in the Citizens' building last night at the opening of the expansion campaign of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

"It is an unbiased, non-sectarian organization that acts beyond any selfish service to promote the interests of the entire community; it is more civic than commercial; and it is a voluntary organization whose incentive is exactly opposite to that of any paying organization. In most other organizations the members work for and expect pay in some shape or other, but in this voluntary organization, the Chamber of Commerce, the worker is asked to pay to be allowed the privilege of doing something for somebody else."

Tells of Progress
In his address Mr. Farrell recounted the progress that has been made by the city of Los Angeles, in its growth during the past thirty-four years, during which its Chamber of Commerce has been functioning, stating that the men who founded the organization had nothing to offer outsiders except climate. Then they added mocking birds, more climate, oranges, still more climate, and little by little they ballyhooed their wares until they had people coming to Los Angeles from all over the country. Then the problem arose to find something to keep the visitors there, and they were shown that it was to their advantage to bring their business to the coast and settle in this new region where natural advantages were so many; and from that point to the present, when Los Angeles occupies its present position of leadership among the cities of the world, the place of the nation's busiest seaport, the growth has been aided and guided by the Chamber of Commerce, which has meticulously kept itself clear of participation in anything remotely savoring of politics and has devoted itself solely to the development of Los Angeles and the territory surrounding the city.

Growth of Los Angeles
The growth of Los Angeles and of the Chamber of Commerce there was cited by Mr. Farrell as showing what the Glendale Chamber of Commerce can accomplish by persistent and aggressive work and by bringing together a community of men into a community of thought and to weld them together into a group that will think and act for the benefit of the community as a whole and not for any individual.

Caterpillar Army Hits Oregon, Eats Crops, Halts Trains

ALBANY, Ore., June 12.—A work train equipped to spread crude oil on the tracks was sent out of here today to fight the caterpillar menace which has delayed trains during the past few days over the Albany-Newport branch.

The pests have been so thick at times that trains were stalled for over an hour while the rails were swept off for a distance of over a mile. Not a vestige of tree vegetation is seen between Eddyville and Summit, a distance of ten miles, and numerous orchards have been ruined, reports here stated.

Parasite flies in the upper Yakima valley are said to have joined forces with the farmers in stamping out the destroyers.

Farmers report that the pests have cleaned crops as though the land had been swept by fire.

HEADS VEILED PROPHETS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 12.—Harold M. Toller, of Toledo, was today unanimously elected grand monarch of the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, in convention here.

was installed by the father of a Chicago girl, who discovered that she was able to use her legs for swimming when one day she was helped into the surf while undergoing treatment in the south.

The theory behind the treatment is that, when the afflicted arms or legs are submerged in water, support is given to the muscles, and if any strength remains in them, the patient can move them.

Children taking the treatment, according to the doctors, respond well to it because of the pleasure they have splashing and frisking about. They usually come out only under howling protests.

Two Men Charged With Beating Girl and Escort

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—With two young business men under arrest charged with beating Miss Thelma Rodner, 19, Denver heiress, and robbing her of $3000 in jewelry and $35 in cash, after beating her companion, Roy Page, also from Denver, deputy sheriffs today searched for the young woman's jewelry.

The two men under arrest are Raymond Remington and Donald Hadley, who, according to information in the hands of the sheriff's office, with two girl companions, lured Miss Rodner and Page to a lonely spot in Beverly Hills known as Magnet hill and there beat Page into unconsciousness and also beat Miss Rodner when she went to Page's assistance. Miss Rodner told the officers that she and Page met Remington and Hadley and two girl friends in a downtown cafe and after making friends some one suggested they go for an automobile ride. The party of six then proceeded to Magnet hill where Remington and Hadley drew Page to one side and started mistreating him. Seeing her escort being worsted in the one-sided battle, Miss Rodner said she went to Page's assistance and was beaten into unconsciousness.

Many German men have disappeared in the past twenty-four hours. Their fate is unknown. The state of siege continues. Telephone service has been suspended. SAYS PRESENT SUGAR PRICES TO CONTINUE COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 12.—Present sugar prices will continue until the new crop of new beet sugar is available next fall, according to T. R. Love of Salt Lake City, president of the American Sugar Manufacturers' Association, in his annual address to that body, which is in session here today. "The tariff has little or nothing to do with the present high price of sugar," Love declared, "and the safeguarding of the domestic sugar industry until it dominates the American market is the only hope for eventual price reduction." Love asserted that the question is "one of much larger demand than supply," saying that Americans consumed twenty per cent more sugar this year than last, and that the European demand was much heavier. Love attacked the boycott movement on sugar, declaring a conservative movement to prevent hoarding would be more beneficial than the frenzied agitation against the high price of sugar which is being carried on.

WAR THREATS IN BULGARIAN MOVE MAKE SEARCH FOR MISSING WOMAN

Mobilization Violation of Treaty, Is Claim in Serbian Protest

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service
LONDON, June 12.—The Serbian (Jugo-Slav) legation received a message from Belgrade this afternoon charging that the new revolutionary government of Bulgaria has begun to mobilize the military forces. The Serbian minister was instructed to protest to the allies, pointing out that Bulgarian mobilization would be a treaty violation.

The accusation of the Serbians was denied in a message from Sofia, which said a government manifesto had been issued, emphasizing that the policy of the revolutionary cabinet was one of peace.

A report from Prague that former Premier Stamboulsky had been captured by revolutionary troops is not yet officially confirmed.

Sofia advises claim all danger of a counter revolution past but this is contradicted by reports from Belgrade.

Occupied by Troops
Bulgarian revolutionary troops have occupied all garrison towns, postoffices, telegraph offices and railway stations.

Proclamations have been issued warning peasants not to assemble. Premier Zanov and his colleagues explained that the peace manifesto was designed to quiet any fears that might be felt by Bulgaria's Balkan neighbors.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch said Serbia was reinforcing the frontier guards on the Bulgarian border. Private advice from Belgrade said Bulgarian peasants were arming and flocking to the support of Stamboulsky, demanding that he lead them upon Sofia.

DENY COMPLICATIONS

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Although the government will protest with the rigid enforcement of the supreme court's dry seal ruling because it has no other choice in the matter, President Harding and other officials do not believe that the international complications growing out of such enforcement were foreseen by congress in enacting the Volstead law, it was stated officially at the White House today after the cabinet meeting.

DEPOT FAILS TO SHIFT IN BLAST OF ORATORY

Hurricane of Words Hits
S. P. Station, But It
Remains---on Paper

The Day-Po, the Day-Po, We will all go to the Day-Po, Sing in alto, the Day-Po, Or sing soprano, at the Day-Po Where'er the Day-Po may go.

If Glendale's Singing Mayor Spencer Robinson isn't singing such a ditty today, he ought to. For the location of the Southern Pacific depot in the southern section of Glendale is the topic of the day.

Also, it was the principal topic of a special meeting of the City Council yesterday afternoon. From every angle the location of the new $7,000 station was discussed, but the tongue twisters failed to move it a foot. It has been moved several times, on paper, and it may still be put someplace else than where it is supposed to go. Therefore the rhyme.

Legally Blocked
Just why the council met yesterday is not explained, other than the fact that an announcement was seemingly made necessary by the city attorney who (trifely stated it would not be possible for the council at this time to pay $8500 for two lots which will permit the opening of Cerritos avenue. He suggested this might be done after the annual budget has been adopted the first of July.

Attorney Ray L. Morrow received lusty applause for the encouragement he gave those who do not want Cerritos avenue opened. He also gave hope to others who believe the station should be at the base of Eulalia street.

Then members of the Council announced they had determined to buy the Cerritos avenue lots as soon as they could do so legally. And this was applauded from those who want the station at the foot of Cerritos, as well as those who have promised to pay a $6000 premium to aid the city in opening the street.

Wanted to Talk
Councilman W. A. Horn moved to adjourn as soon as this was said. Councilman Asa Hall, seconded him, but there were three-score or more people present to express their views. They insisted on doing so—and they did. After which the council adjourned without action.

J. S. Knox and Mrs. Baker were leaders in opposing the opening of Cerritos avenue, especially if the property owners in the vicinity were going to be taxed. R. F. Kitterman and Roy L. Kett, representing the Chamber of Commerce and the business interests, implored the council to not lose sight of the fact that the station was worth a great deal to the city.

Receives Lost Voice
Councilman Sam Davis said he was unable to express his views last meeting, which was held Saturday morning, because he had been at the Elks' boxing show and yelled himself hoarse. He added he was willing to pay the assessment of any property owner who protested the city purchasing the two lots at $8500 from the general fund.

Councilman W. A. Horn endeavored to explain his motion on Thursday night, relative to the depot location and stated the council minutes were incorrect. These would be changed and S. S. Gihuly, who appeared among the (Continued on Page 5)

Witness Springs Big Sensation in Crocker Will Fight

DUBLIN, Ireland, June 12.—The biggest sensation of the Crocker will contest was sprung today when Richard Davies, of Northampton, Mass., swore on the witness stand that Mrs. Bula Crocker, widow of the late Richard Crocker, former leader of Tammany in New York, had posed as the wife of Guy Marone while living in his house.

According to allegations made by Crocker's children by his first marriage, Mrs. Bula Crocker married Marone and was not divorced from him when she married Richard Crocker in New York in 1914.

Davies said Marone rented a room from him and lived there for three years. In 1911 he brought a woman to the house and introduced her as his wife. They occupied the same rooms.

COUNCIL PLANS TO PAVE ALLEYS

Thoroughfares in Business
Section to Be Improved
During Summer

Alleys in the business district will be paved before the rainy season, according to plans received this morning by City Engineer Bon F. Dupuy.

The resolution of intention covering the contemplated improvement of certain alleys in the business district has been drawn up by the city engineering department and is being turned over this afternoon to City Attorney Ray L. Morrow for checking. If this work has been completed by Thursday night, it will be adopted at the next session of the City Council.

A week will elapse before the street notices of intention can be printed and posted along the rights-of-way. After these have been up ten days, the Council may set the time for hearing protests. If a petition signed by a majority of property owners is received protesting the improvement, proceedings are automatically suspended for six months, unless in the meantime a majority petition is received in favor of the work.

Legal Time Required
After the work has been ordered by the council, two weeks will be required to secure bids. Another week will be necessary to check these over. After a bid has been accepted about two weeks will elapse before the contract is signed. The contractor then has ten days in which to get his paraphernalia on the job and ninety days in which to do the work.

Actual work should not take longer than two weeks in the opinion of Mr. Dupuy. He said that about sixty days would elapse between the passage of the resolution of intention by the Council and the commencement of the paving.

The alleys are about sixteen feet wide, although one of them is twenty feet wide. A strip four feet wide running through the middle is to be paved with six-inch concrete. This will provide a channel for storm water. It will have the general appearance of a concrete walk through the alley.

Under Consideration
The portions of the alley on either side of the center strip are to be paved with six-inch asphaltic concrete according to present plans.

Alleys scheduled for improvement under this job are as follows:

Alley west of Brand boulevard between Colorado street and Wilson avenue.
Alley south of Broadway between Brand boulevard and Maryland avenue.
Alley east of Brand boulevard from alley south of Broadway to Colorado street.
Alley east of Central avenue from Broadway to Wilson avenue.
Alley south of Broadway from Orange street to alley west of Brand boulevard.

Fires In Northern Portion Of County Menace Aqueduct

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—Worried by an all night struggle with forest fires in the northern part of Los Angeles county, scores of men continued today to battle the flames in an effort to prevent their spreading to suburban towns and oil company holdings, according to word reaching County Forester Flintham's office here.

The fighters were reported centering their efforts chiefly on Sandberg station on the Ridge route which was said to be in the direct path of the flames. Hundreds of men from points throughout San Fernando valley have volunteered their services and were fighting to check the flames in San Francisco and Bouquet canyons.

The Los Angeles aqueduct was reported endangered by the flames and the fire fighters were exerting every effort to prevent its destruction and consequent depletion of Los Angeles' water supply.

Other fires were reported burning over wide areas in Piru canyon, Ventura county, and the Santa Barbara national forest, and one near Lebec on the Ridge route. Careless week-end campers are thought to have started the fires.

FIVE MILLION DAMAGE TO KANSAS BY BIG FLOOD

Six Lives Lost, Thousands
Homeless; Dread Disease
Threatens Towns

BULLETIN

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 12.—Rapidly rising waters of the North Canadian river threatened this city with the third flood in three weeks today. Two thousand homes lay in the lowlands of the river and are endangered by the flood menace. Dykes and levees, already weakened by the previous floods, are not expected to hold. The water stage will be higher according to weather bureau officials.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., June 12.—With the flood crest reached and raging waters receding, Kansas today was taking stock of the damage wrought by one of the worst floods in its history. According to estimates today the property damage will run into millions, but six lives seemed to be the complete toll claimed by the flood.

The chief sufferers were Arkansas City and Winfield, although a score of other places were hit hard.

Damage in Arkansas City was estimated today at approximately $3,000,000, while that at Winfield probably will reach one and a half million dollars.

The Kew River and most of its tributaries today were rapidly falling and danger in northern Kansas was fading. In the east, however, the valleys of the Verdigris and Neosho and other streams were being inundated and thousands of acres of rich land is going under water.

Death List May Grow
At Kansas City reports today were that a number of persons are unaccounted for and it is feared an additional loss of life there will be disclosed.

Preparations for an extensive search for bodies were being made. A thousand homeless are being cared for in churches, hospitals and private homes.

Following the receding of the waters looms the dread disease monster and preparations are being made to combat this, following the discovery of a case of small-pox and several cases of measles. American Legion members are patrolling the stricken town.

Jess Willard Isolated
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 12.—The fate and whereabouts of Jess Willard, who reached 101 ranch, Marland, Okla., Sunday to participate in a round-robin fight, was still unknown by the outside world today, communication with the ranch having been demoralized for two days.

The ranch was a veritable island and thousands of head of livestock and chickens had been drowned by the Fall Fork river overflowing, according to Colonel R. T. Miller, head of the ranch. No confirmation of the reported drowning of six persons could be given.

Telephonic communication was broken off. Willard's preliminary training plans were wrecked. This included a primitive buffalo feast prepared on the plains by Osage Indians and "rough and tough cowboys of the old school."

Cure Infantile Paralysis By Plunge In Tepid Water

CHICAGO, June 12.—Successful treatment of infantile paralysis by submersion of children in a tank of tepid water was announced today by the staff of the Northwestern University Medical school. The method has been found successful, it was announced, that patients formerly compelled to remain in wheel-chairs are able to walk, in some instances without crutches.

A tank, five feet high and six feet in diameter, much resembling a rain barrel, has been installed in the school. It is filled with water enough to submerge the legs and lower torso of child patients. It was installed by the father of a Chicago girl, who discovered that she was able to use her legs for swimming when one day she was helped into the surf while undergoing treatment in the south.

The theory behind the treatment is that, when the afflicted arms or legs are submerged in water, support is given to the muscles, and if any strength remains in them, the patient can move them.

Children taking the treatment, according to the doctors, respond well to it because of the pleasure they have splashing and frisking about. They usually come out only under howling protests.

GLENDALE getting its Southern Pacific station located, the moving of the post-office, or the like isn't what all when you stop and consider what the Southern California Telephone Company is putting over on Los Angeles.

Briefly, the name of every exchange is going to be changed. For instance, Lincoln numbers are going to have the prefix of Capitol now going to the primer. The other changes are as follows:

Wilshire to Drexel; Washington to Dunkirk; South to Humboldt; West to Beacon, and Pico to Metropolitan. It would appear they borrowed the names from New York, Boston and Edinburgh, which hasn't anything to do with the trouble the new telephone book will make.

In the first place, everyone in Los Angeles will have to learn their numbers anew. Then they will have to get new office stationery, change their advertising matter, and otherwise arrange their affairs to comply with the latest whim of the telephone officials.

If that isn't going to mean grief for everyone, especially those so unfortunate as not to lose the old telephone books, we will miss a guess. Yet Glendale can smile for the upset doesn't affect the exchange here.

Bootleg booze scored well over the week-end. Two lives were snuffed out here in an auto crash with two others arrested for drunkenness. In Los Angeles a young woman is dying from the effects of the illicit stuff. In San Francisco a man is permanently blinded by a poison potion. And so it goes.

The government of the United States, in its efforts to enforce prohibition, might do well to conduct a publicity campaign against drinking moonshine concoctions—or any booze for that matter. It is all dangerous since King Alcohol has been outlawed.

If you must drink, it is the earnest suggestion of the writer, that you go to some country where it is legal to "likker up," or otherwise you may pay a more severe penalty than any court will ever assess.

As was pointed out in Comment some weeks ago, the American people had to choose between their automobiles and alcoholic stimulants. With the great number of motorists on the highway today, drunken drivers were not to be tolerated.

And if there is anything more difficult than trying to convince a "sonse" he is unfit to drive his own car, to say nothing of interfering with the driving of another, we would like to learn of it.

It has been our displeasure to ride with those who were not sober. Believe me, you need no stimulant to awaken you to the fact that you are riding with death.

The income tax department of the government has built up a publicity department, locally at least, which keeps the public informed as to the latest rules, regulations and inquiries, if the term be pardoned.

The bad news, sometimes not so bad when exemptions are announced, is cheerfully purveyed to the public and it pays accordingly. Why the same system of information as to fatalities caused by booze could not be inaugurated at small expense is a proposal worth consideration.

Former residents of the Sunflower and Sooner states, Kansas and Oklahoma to be specific, today are reading of the toll taken by flooded rivers. It is an annual occurrence in the midwest, a situation that is most lamentable.

Toledo, Pueblo, Kansas City and other cities have suffered in years gone by. It is often said by those who have gone through various catastrophes that between fire and water they would choose the former.

Most of us prefer neither.

Do you read the classified advertising in The Glendale Evening News? A lot of people do. And they profit thereby. For instance, we noticed last night where someone was advertising "free rent" to people who would care for their place. We saw a hundred and one different bargains in real estate and furniture and poultry and motorcars, for practically everything advertised is priced right. Otherwise there would be no need in wasting money on advertising.

It will pay you to read the classified columns as well as to use them when the occasion arises. The Glendale Evening News is in a class by itself when it comes to classified. It gets results.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Farewell Surprise

As a farewell to Miss Margaret McCourt, who has been spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. S. H. Wilcox at 1817 Gardena avenue, Miss Frances Goldsborough, Miss Dorothy Thompson and Miss Norma Wallace, were hostesses recently at a delightful surprise, which took the form of a progressive affair.

The guests assembled at the home of Miss Goldsborough at 1937 Gardena avenue, where games were enjoyed. Later they progressed to the home of Miss Thompson at 1817 Gardena avenue, where they were further entertained with games.

Then proceeding to the home of Miss Wallace at 1247 South Boynton street, they found a table most attractive in its appointments, with covers laid for twenty-five.

A pink and white color scheme was carried out with pink and white carnations and favors. Toy balloons added color to the pretty and were a source of much amusement to the guests.

Those enjoying the affair were Misses Margaret McCourt, Ruth Goldsborough, Margaret Richardson, Sara Fae Snell, Carol Duncan, Helena Richardson, Caroline Bly, Esther Besant, Dorothy Van Meter, Ruth Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. F. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. John Ruedy, of Bangor, Wis., Herbert Bruck, Walter Sullivan, Norman Frahm, Donald Frahm, Nevil Richardson, Ruthford Wallace, Albert Hewitt and the hostesses.

Honors Friend

Miss Irene Wright, of 811 Orange Grove avenue, was hostess last night to a number of friends when she entertained with a miscellaneous shower complimenting Miss Rosalie Gilliland, a June bride.

The rooms were artistically decorated in pink and white with Cecil Brunner and Dorothy Perkins roses. A beautiful basket of roses formed the centerpiece for the refreshment table, above which were hanging from the chandelier four pink balls. Pink and white streamers leading from the chandelier to the dainty pink place cards marked the guests' places.

During the evening games and music were enjoyed, and the guest of honor was showered with many beautiful and useful gifts for her new home, which will be in Oklahoma.

At a late hour refreshments were served by the hostess. Those present were Miss Marie Bowen, Miss Helen Apperle, Miss Corinne Grose, Miss Ina Day, Miss Katherine Ellen, and the guest of honor, Miss Rosalie Gilliland and the hostess, Miss Irene Wright.

Week-End Trip

Attorney and Mrs. Owen C. Emery and son, Jack, of 627 North Jackson street, and Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Menk and daughter, Betty, of 143 South Isabel street, returned last night after having spent the week-end at Arrowhead lake. They left here early Saturday morning and returned to their homes late last night. While there they enjoyed fishing and hiking. Mr. and Mrs. Menk purchased a lot there, where they will build a summer home of the Normandie architectural type.

Board Luncheon

Bidding farewell to three retiring members of the board, officers of the Tuesday Afternoon club were hostesses yesterday at a luncheon in the tea room of the clubhouse. The affair followed the regular meeting of the club board.

Honorees were Mrs. A. P. Findlay and Mrs. John Robert White, whose terms as directors have expired, and Mrs. John C. Dunn, who served as club secretary during the past year, and who will take up the duties of corresponding secretary of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's clubs, under the presidency of Mrs. Charles H. Toll.

Following the morning meeting of the board the company gathered in the tea room, where places were marked around tables attractively decorated with golden marigolds and ivy.

The place cards, the work of Mrs. Daniel Campbell, were most clever. Each card bore a literary quotation, expressive of some outstanding characteristic displayed by the person for whom the place was marked.

The three honorees each received a box of inexpensive gifts, each gift bearing a message in either prose or poetry expressing the regret at the end of the association, and appreciation for the co-operation and service of the past months.

Present Program

Madrigal club members are to sing tonight at the Glendale Presbyterian church under the auspices of the women's society of the church. These singers are some of the most talented musicians in Glendale and their many friends who have heard them in their two concerts this year are looking forward to their appearance tonight.

The program will begin at 7:30 o'clock and included in the groups of selections will be such favorites as "I Bring You Heartease" (Barlow); "Mah Lindy Lou" (Harris); "My Desire" (Nevin) and others.

Mrs. Helen Graham Cole and Mrs. Virginia Freeman will appear as soloists, and the high school quartet will take part in the program. Assisting will be Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, reader.

Miss Lilla Litch is organist; Mrs. Charles A. Parker, club director; and Mrs. John A. Wright, accompanist.

Enjoyable Outing

A very enjoyable outing was participated in Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Barrett of 219 El Bonito street; Mr. and Mrs. El Bryant of 447 West Colorado street; Mrs. A. Weider, Mrs. Hattie Harrover, Miss Leda Weider of 318 El Bonito street and Mrs. A. Burrows of Los Angeles.

The party motored to La Crescenta valley into the Tuluca district, visiting various points of interest. An interesting feature of the trip was a visit to the new home of John Steven McGroarty in the "Green Verdugo Hills." A picnic dinner was enjoyed under the great oaks of Monte Vista park.

Gather Tonight

The Mary Jane Gillette tent, Daughters of Veterans, will hold a regular meeting tonight at 8 o'clock, at the American Legion hall, 610 East Broadway, announces Mrs. Joseph V. Griffin.

As this will be the last meeting of the season, except for the annual encampment, which opens tomorrow at Santa Monica Park, and in view of the fact that there will be initiation of new members, it is desirable that a large turnout be registered. Mrs. Griffin states.

Wed In Glendale

Rev. C. S. Prout of Eagle Rock, officiated Saturday night, June 9, 1923, at the marriage of Miss Bernice E. Blankenship, daughter of Mrs. Lillian Musselman of 254 Sinclair avenue, to Merl K. Snyder of 109 North Cedar street. The ceremony took place at 7 o'clock before a company of fifty relatives and friends. A supper followed the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Snyder will reside in Long Beach, where Mr. Snyder is employed in automobile work.

Meet Tomorrow

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Lester Myer chapter of War Mothers will take place Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock in the L. O. O. F. hall on West Broadway. The principal business to be transacted will be the reading and acting upon the reports of the organization's activities in the recent industrial exposition.

Members and those eligible for membership are urged to be present at Wednesday's meeting.

Live Cole Class

The Live Cole class of the Central Christian church Sunday school will present an entertainment and program on Friday night, the purpose of which is to raise funds for supplying household necessities for the church's missionaries, Rev. and Mrs. Willard Learned, who expect to go to Africa during the coming year.

A number of local and Los Angeles musicians and entertainers will appear on the program.

Attend Picnic

The Glendale Avenue Intermediate Parent-Teacher association, instead of holding their regular meeting at the school house, will attend the federation picnic at Brookside park on Wednesday, June 13, it is announced.

HAGEN MAKES UP FOR POOR START

Does Troon Course in 77 Today Which Gives Him Chance to Keep Title

By ROBERT E. HARLOW
For International News Service
TROON, Scotland, June 12.—With his back to the wall, figuratively speaking, Walter Hagen of New York, who won the British open championship last year, rose to supreme heights here this afternoon when he turned in a card of 77, giving him a total of 159. It was almost a certainty that this total would qualify him for the championship round Thursday and Friday, to determine the year's golf champion.

Hagen had to bring to the front all of his skill today. Following his distressingly poor score of 82 yesterday, Hagen took 41 for the out-journey today.

Only five Americans of the dozens of representatives for the United States qualified this afternoon for the championship round to determine the winner of the British golf championship. The qualifying figure was 159 or better and 88 of the 222 contestants entered managed to survive for the first rounds.

Among the Americans who fell by the wayside was Gene Sarazen, the American open titleholder, who failed to get through by one stroke, his score for two days being 160. James Barnes, of Pelham, N. Y., also failed with a score of 160.

DEMPSEY TAKING RISK AT SHELBY

Idleness of Two Years May Cost Him Title, Say Sporting Experts

By ED W. SMITH

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 12.—If you are from the East and come to this section of the country and start to tell the natives what a lot of chumps they are to think they can get away with a big financial success when Jack Dempsey may or may not defend his title against Tom Gibbons, July 4, you are going to get more than a laugh.

You are going to get some hot words and arguments that may change your opinion.

Despite the fact that Dempsey, already in good appearance—note the difference in the meaning of "appearance" and "condition"—is just getting down to the hard licks of the thing.

Dempsey was gone for one week at a stretch and today he starts all over again with his boxing. Some of the cynics of the boxing game are hinting that Dempsey has been missing a great deal in his leads and that he has permitted himself to get dangerously far out of actual fighting trim. It is hard for him to be even the wonder that Dempsey is accounted, to remain in idleness for exactly two years and then expect to lick a sprightly young fellow like Gibbons.

Sarazen Qualified, Belief of Gallery

TROON, Scotland, June 12.—Playing in a rain, Gene Sarazen, American open champion, today turned in an 85 for his second round of qualifying play for the British open championship. With his score of 75 for yesterday, Sarazen has a total of 160 for the 36 holes, a score which it is believed will enable him to qualify.

TAGGING ALL BASES

The majority of the major league clubs went west yesterday, rain causing a postponement of the five of the eight games scheduled.

Babe Ruth's double in the first, leading to the scoring of 2 runs, convinced Sherry Smith of the merits of the big slugger that the "Babe" received four passes in succession and the Indians beat the Yanks, 4 to 3.

Jess Barnes' coming-out party with the Boston Braves was spoiled by the Cubs who walloped him from the mound while they grabbed a 10 to 3 decision.

LOOK AN OVER DOSE OF SEA-SICK REMEDY WHICH BROUGHT ON SEMI-BLINDNESS, IT CAUSED HER TO BE OUT OF THE GAME LAST YEAR.

for seasickness. The accident compelled her to retire from active competition on the links, and the return to the game of Miss Marion Hollins, the 1920 champion, adds a little more interest to some of the women's golf events this season. Although defeated by Miss Collett in March at the annual North and South Champion Tournament at Pinehurst, Miss Hollins is a factor that will have to be reckoned with in every event she enters.

By defeating Alexa Sterling in 1920, Miss Hollins stepped to the fore among woman golfers. A short time later, while traveling to Europe, the champion was stricken with semi-blindness caused by an overdose of a remedy it was not until the past winter that she recovered sufficiently to get back into her game—that is, in anywhere near her true form.

She is a veteran at golf and has gradually built up her game to a high standard after many years of labor. Miss Collett will have her hands full in the next championship to check the "come-back" of the former title holder.

Miss Hollins will compete in the Women's Eastern Championship this week at the Whitmarsh Valley club in Philadelphia.

Gibbons Faster Than Dempsey, Is Report

SHELBY, Mont., June 12.—Rocco Stragmalla, coast-born Italian heavyweight, who cut Jack Dempsey's eye in a sparring bout at the champion's Great Falls camp and who was chased out of the championship camp for his pains, was singing the praises of Tommy Gibbons, Stragmalla went a few rounds with Tom for the edification of the Shelby populace and declared Tom was so fast he found it hard to believe Dempsey was really and truly champion.

"I didn't know where the left hand was coming from," quoth Stragmalla, "but it certainly was coming with some regularity and a great deal of speed."

It was the challenger's first boxing since his training camp here was completed. He went two rounds with Stragmalla and the same number with Bud Gorman.

He gave Gorman everything he had and the recipient replied with everything he had. The result was a splendid exhibition.

Eddie Kane is looking for an addition to the heavyweight list of sparring partners in the Gibbons camp.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 12.—Words of assurance to those persons who fear Jack Dempsey will not be in proper condition to defend his title against the punches of Tom Gibbons when they meet July 4 at Shelby were given today by the champion himself.

Three weeks remained before the day of the great encounter, Dempsey divides that into two weeks for the actual grind of real hard training and a week to taper off.

"I'll be there," he said. "Don't worry that I will be stale. I won't."

Some mystery surrounds the actual weight of the champion. Replying to queries as to what he thought he probably would weigh on July 4, Dempsey grinned and referred questioners to Jack Kearns, his manager. "Doe is the official weight guesser for this camp," he said.

Kearns "guessed" Dempsey would weigh between 170 and 200 pounds and that is as far as he would go.

Dempsey planned to do some more fishing today.

McGraw Building Up Team for Flag Spurt

NEW YORK, June 12.—Disquieting rumors are trailing the New York Giants, purporting to indicate that the coach, John McGraw, is planning to build up a more or less permanent residence in Boston is not the last that John McGraw intends to swing. It is said that several veterans may be tossed on the open market.

However, fans have been given to understand that McGraw sees the necessity of adding pitching strength and is not averse to parting company with at least one outfielder and a pitcher in order to get what he wants. The identity of the latter has not been disclosed, but a perfectly reasonable guess would name Dutch Rether, eccentric left hander of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Rether is perhaps the best left hander in baseball, but he has outlived his welcome in Brooklyn.

Weather Aids Flier In New Lift Test

SAN DIEGO, June 12.—In an attempt to break five world's sea-plane records, Lieutenant M. A. Schur, of the naval air service, succeeded in raising his heavily laden torpedo plane from the bay here this morning at 7:46. He rounded the first pylon at 7:51 4-5 and was off down the first side of the triangular 25-kilometer course with a wave of his hand to the watchers on the ground. The weather was ideal for Schur's test flight, aviation officials said. The 48 degree temperature will prevent the motor from overheating.

Sport Snap JACK KEENE

Luis Firpo and Jess Willard have one thing in common. Each took to the ring much later in life than the average boxer. Willard was twenty-six before he took part in his first contest. Firpo says he is twenty-six, but those who knew him down in South America say he is twenty-nine.

Firpo, of course, had some ring experience before he appeared in New York last year, but it did not amount to much. Luis virtually began his ring career when he took on Joe McCann and Sailor Mated in Jersey City last summer. He was then the rawest kind of a novice. He knew nothing about boxing from any angle. All he had was plenty of natural fighting instinct.

Firpo did not show any signs of improvement until he was placed in the care of Jimmy DeForest a few weeks before his fight with Bill Brennan. Jimmy did wonders with him although he did not have much time. But, during the interval between the Brennan bout and the recent affair with Jack McAuliffe, the senior has improved beyond belief.

Boxers who begin early usually burn out early. Ring history is full of examples. There have been a few exceptions like Georges Carpentier, who started at the tender age of thirteen, but they only prove the rule. It is highly probable that the youngsters who flashed and fizzled would have attained far greater brilliancy as well as lasted longer if they had not taken up the strenuous sport until later in life.

Examples of the boxer who started extra early are so few that little is known about whether his chances are helped or hindered thereby. It is a well known fact that a youth acquires learning of any kind a great deal more readily than a man of more advanced years. When it comes to learning the science of boxing, an early beginning is an advantage, but when it comes to bearing the strain of battle, it may be that the man who starts late has a better chance of success.

That is particularly true of heavyweights. With the few fellows, ability to give and take hard blows is of far more importance than science. Among the little fellows science and ring cunning count for much. In the lighter classes a boxer without skill cannot reach the top no matter how rugged he may be. In the heavyweight class stamina and hitting ability count for more than skill.

No doubt that is why Willard, who was well matured before he started, has been able to upset all ring precedent by making a successful comeback at the age of forty-one. Also why Firpo, at an age where most boxers have begun to slip, is just beginning to display form that warrants matching him for the championship.

Twisting the Tiger's tail seems to be the favorite pastime of players sent by Ty Cobb to other teams in the American league.

Outfielder Flagstead, now with Boston, and Third Baseman Hale of the Athletics, both former Detroiters, have battled well against Tiger pitchers, while it remained for Howard Ehmke, traded by Cobb to Boston for Rip Collins, to stop George Dauss' winning streak and record a victory over Detroit, the only game of the series won from the Cobb aggregation by the Red Sox.

Ehmke is a far better pitcher than Cobb gave him credit for being. He has demonstrated that fact by winning five of his six starts for Boston, a tail end team, while Collins has been unable to win a game for Detroit, a pennant contender.

"Every now and then," says Manager Moran of the Cincinnati Nationals, "you'll hear some one prattling about religious differences among ball players, religious factions in this, that or the other club. That's the worst nonsense in the world. In my opinion, baseball is the one best place for men of different creeds to learn respect for each other's doctrines, toleration and broadmindedness."

"I have never yet known a Catholic player who wasn't surrounded by a flock of friends of the club, all belonging to different faiths. I have never known a Protestant player who didn't number the Catholic chaps among his best pals. I have never heard of a manager who thought of picking his men by their religions, and I have never heard an angry word among ball players on account of religious views."

"There is no better melting pot for men of different nations than a ball club, and the same can be said as to their creeds. Baseball is the best harmonizing force in the world, and if its theories, principles and true democracies could be applied in every walk of life men would know, respect and esteem one another far better."

The announcement of the planned sale of the Boston Red Sox to a syndicate of Columbus, O., sportsmen, raises the question of what the Yankees will do, in such an event, for a farm from which to draw star players.

Alexa Stirling Leads In Women's Golf Play

NEW YORK, June 12.—Miss Alexa Stirling, former national champion, this afternoon was leading the field in the opening day play of the women's annual golf championship. She turned in a score of eighty-two for the first eighteen holes. Par for men for the course is seventy-two. Mrs. J. Larouque Anderson, national semi-finalist for two years, was second with eighty-four. One hundred and fifteen women were competing in the tournament.

Weather Aids Flier In New Lift Test

SAN DIEGO, June 12.—In an attempt to break five world's sea-plane records, Lieutenant M. A. Schur, of the naval air service, succeeded in raising his heavily laden torpedo plane from the bay here this morning at 7:46. He rounded the first pylon at 7:51 4-5 and was off down the first side of the triangular 25-kilometer course with a wave of his hand to the watchers on the ground. The weather was ideal for Schur's test flight, aviation officials said. The 48 degree temperature will prevent the motor from overheating.

SALESMEN JOIN DIETRICH FIRM

Fred L. Perry and J. A. Fisher to Assist Prosperous Realty Company

Fred L. Perry, of 815 South Central avenue, and John A. Fisher, of 608 West Doran, have joined the sales force of the Dietrich Realty Company, at 133 1/2 South Brand boulevard. Mr. Perry, who is a cousin of Mrs. Dietrich, has had a long career as a salesman. Mr. Fisher is one of the most successful property owners and builders in Glendale. It is felt by the management that the company is most fortunate in securing the services of such efficient and capable men. During the past two weeks the Dietrich Realty Company has sold more than $150,000 worth of property, among which was the following: 424 North Louise, B. B. Atwood and wife, to Henry L. Sein, of 117 1/2 East Fairview. 227 and 229 North Louise, B. B. Atwood and wife, to Harry W. interested property owners, suggested they be changed at once. It was too pleasant a day out for the reporters to pay strict attention to some of the personalities in which the participants were engaged, but one new phase was given the Southern Pacific station location by A. J. Barnes, secretary of the Santa Monica Blvd. Improvement association, and representing the Hollywood district which the Glendale depot will serve.

"Place the station as near Brand boulevard as possible," he urged, "for Hyperion avenue which will connect Glendale boulevard with Hollywood is bound to become the main artery of traffic. And I tell you most of the Southern Pacific patronage at your station will come from our district."

According to Mr. Barnes the plans for linking Hyperion avenue to Glendale boulevard call for a double-decked bridge over the Los Angeles river at Ivanhoe. The completion of the project will bring the two communities close together, he believes, without heavy grades over the Hollywood hills.

All of which was very disconcerting to those who have just been assessed for the paving and widening of Los Feliz boulevard. Incidentally, they did not endorse the Hyperion avenue plan. Mr. Barnes did sidetrack the day-long discussion for the time and everyone went home to await the opportunity of reopening the debate—which gets better day by day.

High School's Piano Students in Concert

Pupils of the Glendale High school of the piano department under Miss Bula Zeigler, are to present a program at 3:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the music room at the school. The program will reflect the year's work, and parents and friends are invited to be present.

DEATHS—FUNERALS

MRS. ALVIRA EMMERT
Sympathy of Glendale friends is being extended to Mrs. A. R. Eastman of 709 North Louise street, upon the death of her mother, Mrs. Alvira Emmert, Friday, June 8, 1923, in Hollywood. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon and Mrs. Emmert's body taken to Beloit, Kan., for burial.

FRANK W. GREINER
The death of Frank W. Greiner occurred this morning, Tuesday, June 12, 1923, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Maude A. Smith at 106 East Elk street.

Mr. Greiner had been in Glendale but a week, having been brought here a week ago from Monrovia. He was a native of the state of Pennsylvania, having been born in Philadelphia. He had lived in California two years.

Surviving him are his wife, Katherine Greiner, and his sister, Mrs. Smith. Funeral services are in charge of the Jewel City Undertaking Company.

MRS. VERA CAMPBELL
Mrs. Vera Campbell, wife of W. J. Campbell of Los Angeles, died yesterday, Monday, June 11, 1923. She is survived by her father, Henry Williams, and a brother, Horace B. Williams, both of whom live in Montana. The body is in charge of Kiefer & Eyerick.

C. Of C. Membership Drive Starts Off With Plenty Of Enthusiasm Among Workers

show what had been done by his department in the last five months, with over $200,000 collected and 10,000 new members added to the various Chambers of Commerce in Southern California. Every city can get immediate returns on its investment in a Chamber of Commerce, he stated, which is merely the installment payments on community investment, and an organization properly financed and conducted can work wonders for Glendale. The proper laying out of a working plan and the support of the Chamber of Commerce, he asserted, is the most important piece of work that the people of this city can undertake, and vision, too, is necessary for the right direction of the work of insuring Glendale's future. The Chamber of Commerce, he claimed, is not a charitable institution, but is a business affair, and it cannot take the place of the city government nor should it try.

S. P. Morris, who has been in charge of the preliminary work of the campaign for the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, was introduced by Mr. Bayer as the man who is putting Southland towns on their feet, and he asked the people of Glendale to give Mr. Morris their undivided support in this campaign. Mr. Morris was, during the war, acting national director of the Red Cross in Washington, D. C.

The two divisions, composed of nine teams of five men each, under the direction of Ed N. Radke and A. L. Baird as majors, started out this morning to secure the new members whose names have been placed on the list of prospects, and the enthusiasm that was generated at last night's meeting and at the conference that have been held daily for the past week is regarded as an augury of a rapid and successful termination of the campaign.

Community Spirit
Mr. Guthrie, in his opening remarks, characterized the Chamber of Commerce as the essence of community spirit and declared that Glendale had reached a turning point in the history of its Chamber of Commerce, when the development of the community has become a matter of paramount importance. He quoted Theodore Roosevelt to the effect that every man ought to devote a portion of his time to the upbuilding of his own profession, and Mr. Guthrie stated that this could also be taken to mean that every man should devote some of his time to the upbuilding of his own community.

The Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Guthrie stated during the course of his duties as chairman, should be recognized as the reception committee for the city, the one organization that should function as the introducer of the outside world in making the city's personality and advantages known. It is not, he asserted, the function of the Chamber of Commerce to manage the affairs of the city, and it should not endorse or recommend any project that is not for the benefit of the entire city, as many such projects are fostered in selfishness, nor should it engage in activities that are in any sense political. He amended this to state that he believed the Chamber of Commerce could properly go on record as supporting the district attorney of Los Angeles county in his campaign to clean up the lawless element that is endangering life and property and that is contaminating the political life of the community.

Depends On Co-operation
It is perfectly in order, Mr. Guthrie declared, for the various clubs and organizations to endorse such matters as properly come within their particular field, but the Chamber of Commerce must work with a single eye to the benefit of the entire city. This organization, he said, depends on the hearty co-operation of every citizen in the city and pledged his active and continued support to it, urging that it should adopt, as a part of its slogan, the words of Henry Barbour, head of the Long Beach Realty Board, that "a reverent love of my city inspires me."

Mayor Spencer Robinson, in a characteristic speech, declared that the idea of the Chamber of Commerce is to get together and to fight for every other organization in town, and he stated that the Chamber of Commerce has been the greatest aid to him, in his official capacity, of any organization in the city. The City Council, he asserted, is strongly in favor of the Chamber of Commerce, and he especially praised the work it has accomplished in helping out the sewer problem.

Once in a while, declared the mayor, when things grow dull around the City Hall, he throws in the dog ordinance to stimulate interest in the proceedings of the council, or they start an argument over the depot site, but whatever the differences of opinion that may exist, the worth of the Chamber of Commerce is admitted by every member of the official family of the city, and in this connection Mayor Robinson praised the work of his colleagues on the council.

Get Immediate Returns
Charles P. Bayer, manager of the organization service department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, with whose assistance the present campaign is being carried on, stated that the policy of his organization is not only to help in building up Los Angeles but every other city in the Southland, and he quoted figures to part in all rodeo events and put on several sparring bouts. He had intended to lumber up to get his shape for intensive training for his bout with Luis Firpo in New York in July.

What training he has been able to get, if any, was from rowing a boat, according to last reports yesterday, that was the only way one could leave the "island" to get to the Marland station.

Santa Fe trains were not running and the entire country was isolated. Efforts were being made today to get in touch with the ranch by airplane.

THE GLENDALE
"Backbone," the Clarence Budington Kelland story made into a film by Edward Sloman, now showing at the Glendale Theatre, answers the great question, "Does true love last forever?" It tells the story of a love that lasted for hundreds of years, how centuries ago in France a girl gave up her lover to save his life, and how centuries later in Maine the long-frustrated romance is fulfilled.

Tourist Travel East Sets New Records

"Tourist travel has never before been so heavy in my recollection as a railroad ticket agent," stated H. L. Legrand this morning at his offices, 121 South Brand boulevard, where he represents both the Southern Pacific and Pacific Electric lines.

"Business has increased more than 150 per cent over the same period last year, and it takes two men to handle the detail work of inter-line tickets, most of which are being brought right back to Glendale as soon as they see their eastern friends."

"In the first two weeks of this month we have done as much as the whole of June, 1922. Many of our sales are made to Pasadena and Hollywood people who find they are served more conveniently here."

Several stopovers at Shelby, Mont., for the fights are reported by Mr. Legrand.

Fire Chief Directs Fight From Plane

The aeroplane of Fire Chief A. H. Lankford was used in action for the first time about 9:30 Sunday morning when he hovered in it over a brush fire near the intersection of Sycamore Canyon and Verdugo roads.

The destruction by fire of two automobiles was prevented yesterday by the Glendale Fire Department. Back fire from a truck about 3:50 p. m. set weeds ablaze on the northwest corner of Brand boulevard and Doran street where a filling station is under construction. The flames threatened to consume the automobile which is owned by the B. and L. Truck Company of Los Angeles.

A roadster being driven by Mrs. John T. Crampton of 325 Burchett street caught fire from the ignition system about 4 o'clock on Lexington drive near Central avenue. The fire was extinguished by a squad from No. 1 Fire Station directed by Capt. "Johnny" Meyer.

The Newton Electrics won from the Smith Fords, 20 to 10, in the second game.

MUSIC CLUB OUT FOR 200 PATRONS

Membership Drive to Close
With Annual Banquet
Friday, June 29

Activity that may well be an inspiration for other local organizations is being engaged in by the Glendale Music club, which is conducting a live membership drive, to close Friday night, June 29, with the annual banquet at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse.

Honored guests at the final affair will be John Steven McGoarty, writer of California prose and poetry; L. E. Bohemer, impresario; Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer-musician; Gertrude Ross, composer-pianist; Mrs. Catherine Shank, soprano; Frieda Peycke, composer and pianologist, and other noted members of Southern California's musical colony.

The program is being arranged around the theme "California Music, New and Old" and will be introduced by Mr. McGoarty, who will tell of the Spanish music introduced by the padres and the dons.

Silver Trophy Offered
At the banquet final reports will be given on the membership drive and the club's silver trophy will be awarded to the person having secured the largest number over five. Reservations for the banquet can be made with Mrs. Helen Campbell.

This morning Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, club president, made the first report on the progress of the membership drive. Reports on individual accomplishments or on the teams' work will not be made until later, the report given by Mrs. Jones this morning being upon the general progress.

She announces that twenty-three patron members and thirty-nine regular members have been secured to date. She also states that old members are responding promptly to the payment of dues.

With regard to the patron members, it is interesting to note that the patron membership, which can be secured for $10, provides two season tickets for the year.

Patron members now enrolled in the order in which the payments were secured are: Mesdames Daniel Campbell, Mattison B. Jones, Warren Roberts, Nathan Rigdon, Percy Prichard, Helen Campbell, Alexander Mitchell, Miss Myrtle Baldwin, Mesdames Frank Aranda, Dora L. Gibson, Calvin Whiting, C. H. Toll, Charles Marlenee, E. Bandits Wreck Train, Slay, Rob Passengers

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 12.—An organized band of bandits attacked an Inter-Oceanic passenger train near the station of Amozoc, state of Puebla, while it was en route from the city of Mexico to Jalapa, and killed the entire crew and five of the passengers, according to word received by the Mexican paper La Prensa here.

Following the slayings the train and passengers were robbed. According to La Prensa's information the attack is charged to the enemies of the Obregon government who are using every effort to create a bad impression of Mexican conditions while the American recognition commission is in the capital.

The dispatch also states that the military governor of the state of Puebla sent troops in pursuit of the bandit gang.

EXTEND TIME OF BIDS ON SCHOOL

Contractors Will Be Given
Two More Weeks to Submit Quotations

When the board of trustees of the Tujunga school convened to open bids on the new school building work Friday night it was found that bids had not been received on all the work to be done and the time for receiving bids was extended two weeks, in the belief that insufficient time had been given for the bidding to come to the attention of contractors.

Plans and specifications may be inspected at the office of Wallace M. Morgan, president of the board, on Sunset boulevard. Bids will be received until Friday, June 22, 1923.

Another small brush fire excited the residents in the vicinity of Monte Vista boulevard and Hill streets Friday morning. Prompt work on the part of deputy fire warden, Leo L. Lang, and a squad of volunteers confined the blaze to a small area and saved several houses located near by.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—The Burns Detective agency received a cable of congratulations yesterday on the alertness of Walker Cunningham, one of their operatives, honeymooning in Honolulu. Seated with his bride on the Waikiki beach, Cunningham dug up a bag of gold containing $15,000. It was identified as belonging to a local bank and, according to advices to the Burns agency, it was part of loot stolen from a local bank.

Police Hunt Robbers In $10,000 Theft

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—Police of San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Clara county were on the trail today of thieves who late Sunday night entered the country residence of Colonel D. C. Jackling, multimillionaire, at Woodside, and stole jewelry valued at $10,000.

Colonel Jackling and his wife had as their house guests Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Allen, of San Francisco. The robbery took place in the upper part of the house, while they were entertaining their guests on the first floor.

Three platinum bar pins set with diamonds, three strings of pearls, a large pearl stickpin and a gold cigarette case set with diamonds were among the loot.

It was the second attempt at robbery in twenty-four hours, a previous attempt having been reported to the San Mateo authorities by Mrs. Jackling.

May was considered by the ancients a particularly unlucky month for weddings, but June, especially when the moon is full, was the best of any time.

MONTROSE

BUYS STRING OF SADDLE HORSES

Will Furnish Country Club
Members and Public
With Mounts

Montrose is to have a "saddle stable" in the near future at the corner of Ocean View and Wintonia Drive, to be opened by J. R. Thorpe, well known business man of Los Angeles and Montrose. Mr. Thorpe plans to open the stables about July 1 and will have a string of fifteen saddle horses. He has a contract with the Oakmont Country Club to furnish saddle horses for the members and in addition will maintain a sufficient number to accommodate the general public.

A barn measuring 32x64 is being erected to house the horses, with fifteen stalls on the ground floor and ladies and gentlemen's dressing rooms on the second floor. A balcony will extend the length of the second story from which a magnificent view of the Verdugo canyon can be had.

The grounds will be improved and an arch will be placed over the entrance with a decorative sign on it. The barn, equipment and stock will represent an investment of about $6000, according to Mr. Thorpe, who wants this to be a stable that the residents of the valley may be proud of.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe are accomplished equestrians and have secured two experienced horsemen to have charge of the mounts. It is the intention to secure black horses if possible and Mr. Thorpe has already spent much time in locating suitable ones.

One of the horses already here is "Nig," a highly trained handsome black and a great pet. He is the property of Mrs. Thorpe, who claims he is much smarter than many of the horses to be seen in circuses.

Eccentric Ex-Solon Asks for Heart Balm

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Manned Herrick, ex-congressman from Oklahoma, whose eccentric exploits frequently have been featured in the newspapers, has broken into the limelight again.

Herrick filed suit in the supreme court of the District of Columbia against Miss Ethelene Crane, a government clerk, alleging breach of promise to marry and asking $50,000. He announced he would be his own attorney.

The petition set forth that Miss Crane "employed all her wiles and arts" to win him and they became engaged on or about the tenth day of September, 1921, and agreed to marry after Herrick's return from campaigning in the Oklahoma primaries.

Herrick's complaint, one of the most remarkable documents ever filed in the district courts, said, among other things: "The defendant agreed to the plaintiff's ideas of married life, including the single standard of morality; the defendant promised and agreed that if plaintiff would marry her she would not occupy her time in petting puppy dogs, but on the other hand would give her sole attention to keeping house, making a home for the plaintiff and raising some babies he would be proud of."

Frank Booth Suggests Postoffice Location

Editor The Evening News: Controversy is rampant just now as to the best location for the new postoffice. We have to look ahead for the next twenty years. Several locations have been suggested: South Brand, Central avenue and East Broadway. South Brand is taking us toward Los Angeles, therefore cannot be considered, neither can Central avenue. The only logical place to my mind, to one who has lived in Glendale eighteen years and watched the course of development is East Broadway, between Isabel and Kenwood streets. Not because I live in that district, but because it will reach the greatest and most thickly populated district in the northeast section, all those new subdivisions

PLUMBING ETIQUETTE

"Faucet" is the proper word, instead of "cock," which should be discarded in describing any plumbing fixtures, says the National Association of Brass Manufacturers, and also the new high school, and the new high school, and would, I feel, meet with general satisfaction. East Broadway is a thoroughfare running right through the business section.

Yours truly,
FRANK BOOTH.

Grossman-Miller Sell Out Furniture

Forced to sell out their large stock of furniture because the lease on their prominent corner location at Brand boulevard and California street has expired, the Grossman-Miller Furniture Company today inaugurated one of the great money-saving sales in the history of Glendale.

The entire stock of high-grade furniture, rugs, phonographs, gas ranges, refrigerators and other furnishings must be sold at a sacrifice, it is stated, and those who come first will find the best selection. The store will be open evenings during the sale.

Glendale Quickly Forges To Front As Merchandising Center; Buy Here, Slogan

By GIL A. COWAN

GLENDALE has come to the front as a merchandising center in a few short years to an extent that is most remarkable. While bank clearings are not obtainable here, there is no doubt but that the transactions in this city compare favorably with proportionate population of other southland centers. The commercial development of Glendale is best told in the advertising columns of The Glendale Evening News. It is a long story, even briefly told, for it represents the evolution of a country crossroads community to a thriving municipality of 40,000 souls in the last decade.

In 1910 when the first federal census of the incorporated city was taken, the population was reported at 2,742, which might be referred to as a mere handful of people. The business houses were limited to supplying the needs of the immediate community and at that time Tropico, now a part of Glendale, served the larger portion of the city from its stores, which were competing with Glendale avenue and Brand boulevard establishments for community trade.

The Glendale News, issued weekly, until 1913, carried the scattering advertisements to be had, but no great bid for trade was being made by the various stores. They were content to deal with the passersby.

Railroad Invades Hills

In the years prior to the two great California expositions, however, Glendale was destined to take on more importance and the Glendale & Montrose railroad was extended into the now thickly populated green Verdugo hills. Motor roads also became accessible and the horse and buggy gave way almost over night to the faster and more convenient automotive transportation.

For three or four years things began to hum and great confidence in the future was displayed by business men who bought building sites, increased their stocks and to a certain extent over-developed in view of the critical conditions brought about by the war.

Faith, Charity, Hope

From the spring of 1917 to the fall of 1919 it was "hard sledding" and only by faith and charity and hope did many of them blossom out into the substantial business houses you find today. But it was impossible for them to expand fast enough to care for demands made by "the fastest growing city." New money came with the newcomers and in the last five years a transformation has been written that former residents can hardly believe true. Yet the city merits all of these

MISS CRAWFORD BECOMES BRIDE

Weds Roy W. Selover in Little Church of the Flowers Last Night

At a ceremony taking place Monday night, June 11, 1923, at 8 o'clock in the Little Church of the Flowers, Forest Lawn Memorial park, Miss Margaret Stone Crawford, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Crawford of 800 South Central avenue, became the bride of Roy Ulmer Selover, son of Mrs. May Selover of 710 South San Fernando road. Rev. S. A. Thompson, pastor of the Methodist church at Alhambra, Calif., an old friend of the family, officiated at the simple ring ceremony, which was held at approximately 150 relatives and friends.

The church of the church had been transformed into a beauty spot, banked with a variety of palms and greenery, intermingled with which were sprays of pink and white flowers. It was here the bride party stood during the reading of the service. In the archways at the side were hanging graceful ferns in back of which were growing begonias and other potted plants.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. E. R. Moore sang, "Oh, Promise Me," and "At Dawning," accompanied at the piano by Miss Erma Bradshaw.

Miss Bradshaw played the Mendelssohn wedding march for the entrance of the bride party.

Bridal Party Enters

The first members of the bridal party to enter were the ushers, Leo Rice of Santa Monica, Robert Evans, George Hastings, Donald Cowlin of Glendale, J. C. Palmer and Harold Bush of Los Angeles.

The next to enter were the bridesmaids, Miss Lillian Schick, Miss Martha Meyer, Miss Edith Graybow, Miss Dorothy Morton, Miss Dorothy Kramer, Mrs. Dorothy Patterson Talbot, girlhood friends and schoolmates of the bride. Each wore a silver hair wreath and pastel shaded organza gowns trimmed with silver ribbon. They each carried an arm bouquet of pink, white and lavender sweet peas and maiden-hair fern.

The next to appear was the maid of honor, Miss Dorothy Carack, who wore a gown of ivory net with a wide organza sash. She carried a large pink feather fan.

Next came the dainty little ring bearer, Sue Moore, dressed in dainty blue organza and carrying the wedding ring upon a silken pillow.

Then came the little flower girl, Carol Mae Evans, niece of the groom. She wore a picture of loveliness in her white organza gown with pink ribbon hair bow and sash. She carried a little basket filled with orange blossoms and roses which she scattered before the bride.

Pleasing Picture

Miss Crawford presented a most pleasing picture as she entered the church. She was attired in a bridal gown of white chiffon draped over rich satin, simply made with a shower corsage of chiffon roses and lilies of the valley and trimmed with hand made lace worn by her grandmother, Mrs. J. H. Hendel. She wore a wedding veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a beautiful bouquet of gardenias, sweet peas, and lilies of the valley and fern.

Mr. Selover was attended by Charles Talbot, of Glendale.

As the bridal party left the church, Miss Bradshaw played the Lohengrin wedding march.

For the wedding Mrs. Crawford wore a gown of gold colored canton crepe trimmed with roses and pearls.

Mrs. May Selover, mother of the groom, was attired in a rich dark blue printed satin gown.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride with only members of the bridal party present. A simple but rich scheme of decoration was used in arranging the home for the affair. In the living room and dining room, baskets of Cecil Brunner roses and ferns were used. At this time Mrs. Selover cut her wedding cake, which was served with chicken sandwiches and punch.

Those assisting in serving were Mrs. George H. Herald of Glendale and Mrs. J. E. Yancey of Bakersfield.

On Motor Trip

Late in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Selover left by motor for points in the north. They plan to be gone about a month, spending a few days at Lake Tahoe, Yosemite Valley and Mt. Lassen.

For her trip Mrs. Selover wore a beautiful frock of Canton crepe in the tangerine shade, with hat, shoes and gloves in harmonizing shades. Her wrap was of heavy silk velour with a squirrel collar.

Mr. and Mrs. Selover have many friends in Glendale and Los Angeles, and they were the recipients of countless gifts and messages of congratulations. Among their gifts were many pieces of fine silverware, art glassware, and other attractive furnishings for their new home, which is to be in Glendale.

Mrs. Selover has been a resident of Glendale for the past fourteen years, attending the local grammar schools and graduating from the Glendale Union High school with the class of 1920.

Mr. Selover has been a resident of Glendale for the past four years, coming here from Las Vegas, N. M., where he received the major part of his education. In 1916 he joined the navy, serv-

Reach Settlement in Actor's Damage Suit

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—Indicating a final settlement in the $200,000 damage suit brought against Herbert Rawlinson, film actor, by Dorothy Clark, dancer, had been made, the case was dismissed with prejudice in the superior court. Miss Clark brought suit on the grounds that the actor attacked her October 15, 1920, in a New York apartment when she was only fifteen years old.

The case was partly heard before a jury last February. After a portion of the testimony had been heard, it was announced that a settlement out of court might be effected. The court then dismissed the jury and continued the trial in order that attorneys might reach a settlement.

Rawlinson maintained he was innocent of the charges against him, but instructed his attorneys to make a settlement in order to avoid notoriety and publicity incident to a trial of the charges in court.

DE MOLAYS WILL HOLD INITIATION

Ceremonies Thursday First Of Three Events in Local Lodge

De Molay members are anticipating and planning for three important pre-vacation events, two of which are scheduled for this week.

The first is to be the initiatory ceremony to be held Thursday night, June 14, in the Masonic temple, where De Molay members and Master Masons will receive five candidates into the order. This gathering is announced for 7:30 o'clock.

Friends of the order are invited to attend the sport dance planned for Saturday night, June 16. This affair promises to be one of the most pleasurable social events given by the De Molays since their organization and a large crowd is hoped for. Tickets are obtainable from any member of the lodge.

Closing the year's activities before vacation is the installation of new officers Thursday night, June 28.

Joint Parent Order

It will be the installation ceremony and a farewell to two prominent members, who are leaving the order because they have reached the age of 21 years and will now go into the senior Masonic order. They are James D. Thompson, first master counselor of the order; and Forest Jordan, former senior deacon and former preceptor.

At a recent meeting officers elected for July, August and September were Paul O. Morgan, master counselor; Allen K. Pollock, senior counselor; Valentine Holdingsworth, junior counselor. The other officers are appointed and the appointments will be made known late this week.

TODAY—California Crime Control; The New Commission's Work.
TOMORROW—Late to Work in Chicago; The Reason for it, by Roland Krebs, Chicago, Ill.

By WILLIAM G. CAYCE
For International News Service

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—An enviable record of big achievements has been made by the Los Angeles Crime Commission in the few months of its existence, according to a summary of its activities.

A legislative program, designed to impose more severe punishment on crime perpetrators, has been carried out at the state capital at Sacramento, while at home, in Los Angeles, great progress has been made in increasing the efficiency of the law-enforcement agencies.

In the recent session of the state legislature, nine bills sponsored by the commission were passed. All these bills were designed to make punishment more certain for persons convicted of burglary, robbery and similar offenses.

Other accomplishments of the Crime Commission, just outlined, are:

An increase of 412 patrolmen in the personnel of the uniformed ranks of the Police Department.

An increase of forty-five men in the ranks of the Police Detective Bureau.

A survey and proposal by the commission has also been made for the establishment of twenty police call stations. It is proposed that police officers, with automobiles, be on duty at these stations to answer hurry-up calls from their district. The total cost of this plan will entail about $20,000, it is estimated.

The creation of a workable homicide squad of experts, which will include representatives from the sheriff's office, district attorney's office, Police Department and coroner's office has also been suggested.

BILLY WELSKER'S

"The canal never would have been built had it not been for the white man from the Temperate Zone, who went there with energy and money and rushed it through, said Billy as the three chums stood on deck talking one day.

"I should think they would die off, not being used to the great, poisonous bugs and reptiles that live there," said Stubbs.

"They did until the United States of America sent hundreds of men down there to kill the mosquitoes and drain the swamps."

"Kill the mosquito. Ha! ha! laughed Stubbs and Button in chorus.

"Which is in the little pools and stagnant streams. So before Mr. Mosquito grew wings to fly away and bite people, they poured kerosene on top of the water and killed him while he was a baby, before his wings grew for then he was only a little wiggler and could do no harm."

"It seems simple enough to kill them by the millions when you once know him," said Button.

"Yes," replied Stubbs. "And to think that for years and years ago a little thing as a mosquito bite should cause the death of hundreds of people year after year, and we should only now be finding out how to kill them!"

(Tomorrow the chums see some real excitement.)

DINNER STORIES

A movie queen approached the manager with a momentous question. He was not unprepared for it.

"Don't you think I can make just as good pictures if I marry?"

The big boss deliberated and made measured reply: "It's risky, girlie."

"Why so?"

"Well, you won't get so much help. As things stand, the author, the director, the camera operator, the press agent and the property man are in love with you."—Los Angeles Times.

The dear old lady entered the drug store and looked doubtfully at the youthful clerk behind the counter.

"I suppose," she began, "that you are a properly qualified druggist?"

"Yes, madame."

"You have passed all the examinations?"

"Certainly."

"Never poisoned anybody by mistake?"

"Not to my knowledge," she replied, heaving a sigh of relief and laying a coin on the counter, "you may give me a nickel's worth of cough drops."—American Legion Week.

"CAP" STUBBS—Aw! Who's Afraid!

"Naw—I ain't afraid of lions or tigers or bears or hippos or muses. I ain't afraid of burglars either. I guess I ain't afraid of nuthin'!"

"SAY CAP! YOUR MOTHER WANTS YOU! SHE SAYS YOU GOTTA GO TO THE DENTIST!"

"SURE! I KNOW IT!"

"MY BUT YOU'RE BRAVE CAP! I'M JUST BEING HELD UP BY 'FRAND OF DENTISTS!'"

"SHOOT! DENTISTS AIN'T NUTHIN' TO BE SCARED OF! WELL S'LONG! I GOTTA GO NOW!"

"KEROSINING"
Probably Keeps Carbon Deposits From Baking On Too Hard
Time was when squirting kerosene into the cylinders once in a while was considered an effective preventative against the accumulation of carbon deposits, but sad experience long ago proved this idea to be too good to be true. Nevertheless it is still pretty generally believed that occasional kerosene treatments are a good thing for an engine and car manufacturers are almost unanimous in recommending its use. The usual directions suggest that a small quantity, say a tablespoonful or less be injected into each cylinder through the pet-cock or spark-plug hole, when the engine is somewhat warm and left there overnight, the claim being that deposited carbon is thereby softened and loosened, so that it is later carried out with the exhaust.

BRAKE LININGS
J. J. McG. asks: What is the best make of brake lining to use on my car?
Answer: We are sorry that we cannot answer your question, but the varnish in order to re-finish so that it will look like new?

Answer: We are afraid that you will not be able to get a good job by merely removing the varnish. You will have to go deeper than this, and remove the under coats, perhaps clear down to the body material. We advise you, however, to consult a good painter and make sure what your procedure should be.

THIN OIL, OR THICK
W. G. writes: Certain lubricating oil companies state that thin oil is the correct grade for summer and winter alike, but the instruction book of my car calls for a medium grade of oil for summer use. What do you advise?
A friend of mine who has used thin oil in an engine like mine found that the oil lever rose from crankcase condensation of fuel, and some of the spark plugs fouled badly.

Answer: By all means follow the recommendations of the manufacturer of your car rather than any advice given by the oil manufacturers. Our preference is, in a general way, toward the use of oil rather too thick, rather than too thin, toward the use of oil which is positive.

is the established policy of "Motorist Service," to which no exception ever is made, to avoid recommending any particular make of car, accessory devices or material, to any correspondent. We think that a little consideration will make it clear that this is the only course which it is proper for us to take, for it is clear that if we began to recommend the products of specific manufacturers as superior to those of others, we should almost inevitably—though unintentionally—do injury to some of the producers of automotive material. The question as to which is the best material or device is almost always a matter of judgment rather than of absolute fact, and our judgment is by no means infallible. The only suggestion that we can make—and one which we believe will give you good results—is that you use the same make of brake lining which is used by the manufacturers of your car. You can readily find out from the service station of this make which material they are employing.

FINISH IN BAD CONDITION
G. H. writes: The finish of my car is badly checked, or rather cracked. Is it advisable to remove

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

A celebrated Parisian, one of the arbiters of fashion, has landed on these shores bringing the important information that corsets for men will within a few weeks be in vogue the world over. Nobody is flabbergasted over this news. Nobody is surprised at much of anything these days. If the discovery were to be made that men were using powder, puffs, rouge and vanity cases, a few old-fashioned ginks might swallow cyanide of potassium to escape the modern trend, but most of us would take the news philosophically, and with no vulgar display of emotion. But we could say, glancing over our list of gentlemen friends, that many of the corset factories will have to be rebuilt. Machinery will have to be installed to make convex instead of concave corsets. But if the French corset is bound to come, let it come. After putting up with French poodles, French salade dressing, French cigarettes, French vaudeville dancers and French plays, nothing like a French corset for men can disturb our equilibrium.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

BY HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND TIPPY'S SLIDE

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily was hopping through the woods, not far from the hollow stump bungalow, the rabbit gentleman saw Peetie Bow Bow and little Tippy Tumble, who was Peetie's brother.

"Hello, little doggie boys!" greeted Uncle Wiggily in his jolly voice, and with a funny twinkle of his pink nose. "You are going to school, I suppose?" he asked.

"Yes, we are going to school," barked Peetie.

"And I know my—now I know my—Tippy Tumble was trying to say he knew his spelling lesson, but just then Tippy tripped over a leaf on the ground and down he fell, bumping his nose!"

"Tippie-daisie!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, helping Tippy to his paws. "Are you hurt?"

"No, thank you," whined Tippy. "He's always falling down."

"He's always falling down," laughed Peetie. "How many times have you fallen this morning, Tippy?" he asked.

"Oh, I guess about maybe eleven or twelve!" laughed Tippy himself, for he thought it fun to fall on the soft leaves in the woods.

"Well, be careful you don't fall any more," cautioned Uncle Wiggily as the two puppy dog chaps started away. "Oh, but where is brother Jackie?" asked the rabbit gentleman suddenly.

"He had to stay home with a sore throat," answered Peetie.

"And it hurts him like anything," added Tippy Tumble, which was the pet name of the littlest puppy. "Jackie makes awful funny faces when he swallows and I had to go out of the room so I wouldn't laugh at him 'cause it hurts," barked Tippy.

"Indeed a sore throat does hurt!" declared Uncle Wiggily. "And you were a good puppy boy not to laugh at Jackie's funny faces, Tippy. But I must do something to help. Peetie, you run along to school and say to the Lady Mouse Teacher that Tippy won't come to class for a little while. He is going off in the woods for me."

"Oh, where am I going?" barked Tippy all excited like as he stumbled and fell over a little stone about as large as the head of a pin.

"You and I are going off in the woods to get some slippery elm for Jackie's sore throat," explained the bunny gentleman. "Tell the lady mouse teacher in the Hollow Stump School, if you please, Peetie."

"I will, Uncle Wiggily," promised the other puppy dog boy. Then the bunny uncle and Tippy Tumble went into the woods and Jackie remained at home with his sore throat.

"What is slippery elm, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Tippy, as he got up after he had stumbled over a clump of dirt about the size of a penny.

"Slippery elm is a soft, inside bark of an elm tree," answered Mr. Longears, "and it is very good for sore throats. It takes out the pain. I'll show you how to get some slippery elm, and then you may take it home to poor Jackie."

DOWN THE TRUNK OF THE TREE

he coasted.

"Oh, that's all right. Try again," said the bunny. Up the tree went Tippy again. He was gnawing off some of the bark when, as he looked down he saw the bad Bob Cat creeping out of the woods toward Uncle Wiggily, who was now fast asleep.

"Here! You can't nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears!" barked Tippy. With that he let himself slide very fast down the slippery bark of the elm tree.

"Bingo! Bingo!" Tippy crashed into the Bob Cat, knocking him head over heels.

"Oh, Wow! I must be in an earthquake!" howled the Bob Cat. Then Uncle Wiggily awakened and said Tippy was a very brave little puppy dog chap.

And then for the third time Tippy scrambled up the tree, gnawed off some of the soothing bark and it soon made Jackie's sore throat all well.

But, best of all, the bunny gentleman had an adventure. And if the egg beater doesn't try to dance with the nutmeg grater when it ought to be jumping rope with the bread knife, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the flower pitcher.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAYS' NEWS

STANLEY BALDWIN

England's new premier, Stanley Baldwin, is, first of all, a business man. So say his closest associates. Baldwin inherited his business and enlarged it by his own personal gifts. He is the head of the Baldwin Iron Works, a great Welsh enterprise, with which his new chancellor, the exchequer, Sir Robert Horne, has recently become associated.

His first position of importance was financial secretary to the treasury, which office he held from 1913 to 1921. It was in this department that his financial genius was first realized. He was sent to the board of trade as president with a seat in the cabinet. This position corresponds to that of the American secretary of commerce. Baldwin was, in very truth, the Hoover of England, and he quickly added to the reputation which he had already earned at the treasury. The post-war trade of England prospered as his own business had prospered with a Baldwin at the helm.

He was one of the first cabinet ministers to revolt from the coalition. There lay his courage. Not many men of that time had the temerity to try to break down Lloyd George's political despotism.

But Baldwin, comparatively a young politician, not only did so but had as much to do with the success of the seceding movement as anybody else. He was one of the leading spirits in the Carlton club meeting last October which brought the break to a head. The coalition was dead, after seven years of stormy rule.

He was chancellor of the exchequer in the Tory ministry that succeeded the coalition government. One of the thorniest problems he was called upon to tackle was the funding of the American debt. His predecessor and now his successor, Sir Robert Horne, had made arrangements for the funding operation before the coalition fell and Baldwin had to take up the task. He came over to America at the head of a small mission of bankers and aids and put through an arrangement that was subsequently accepted by both the American and the British governments.

Business and Barriers

TODAY'S SHORT STORY
BY Ad Schuster

Charlotte Deeds was the daughter of "big business." In the home she heard her father tell of the deals he had made, listened to his gossip of the Street, and wondered what it all might mean. B. Dyer Deeds demanded an audience, and Charlotte was always at hand. Only because B. Dyer was best pleased when interrupted and was not interested in the views of others, Charlotte was able to make a pretense of understanding.

"What I like about you," the father was gracious enough to observe, "is your sound business sense. You are a credit to your upbringing." The financier regarded his daughter gravely. "When you marry, you must choose a business man. You can be happy with no other."

The girl had heard this before. So many times had B. Dyer dined the virtues of the men of great business abilities she was all but reconciled to her fate. B. Dyer had a way of enforcing his wishes. The girl hoped that when the man with whom she would fall in love appeared, he would be a rare combination of romance and commercial instinct, with enough of business to pass the parental tests and enough of lighter imagination to afford a recess from statistics and money. Then Wallace Breen appeared as a suitor.

Wallace was square of jaw and brisk of speech. He walked with the air of a man about to demand unconditional surrender and carried with him a pack of emphatic gestures. B. Dyer regarded him with approval, sounded him on fundamentals of finance, and settled the affair.

"You will marry young Breen," he said. "He has the cut of the successful man, energy and initiative."

Charlotte wondered. She found herself admiring her suitor and discovering what she believed to be traces of another side to his nature. Perhaps she could bring it out, the side which does not talk business after business hours.

"My daughter," B. Dyer said to young Breen, "is the daughter of a business man. She understands my affairs almost as well as I do. She respects brains, demands them, and she will marry a business man."

"It is my intention," the young man answered, taking advantage of the cue and putting it bluntly, "to ask your daughter to marry me."

B. Dyer knew of Breen's intentions long before the young man was able to summon the courage to propose. Perhaps Breen felt the time was not ripe. Finally, when he risked the question, Charlotte hesitated.

"I will tell you pretty soon. I must have time to make up my mind."

The fear of a lifetime of financial statistics struggled with the real regard she held for the man.

Charlotte dropped into her father's office one afternoon in time to find him strangely perplexed.

"You can help," he greeted her with relief. "Breen was in this morning with some important papers, was going to leave them here, but I insisted he take them with him. You see, I did not know the deal would be brought to a head so soon. Now it is necessary I have them. It will mean a lot to him and me. I've been trying to get him for an hour and there is no answer. There is just the chance, a good one, I believe, he has taken them to his apartment. Will you go and get them?"

"You mean rummage around in Wallace's rooms looking for papers? Maybe I'll be arrested."

"It means more than you know. You can easily convince the apartment superintendent of your identity. Everyone has seen your pictures in the papers and the gossip that you are engaged to Breen. I can't send a messenger and I can't go myself. You will do it?"

"Of course," said Charlotte. "If it is so important."

Charlotte opened the door to Wallace Breen's apartment with the feeling of a burglar, despite the fact it was the superintendent's key which gave her admittance.

"Your father telephoned," he had said, "and I recognize you anyway. Your father has often visited Mr. Breen."

The shades were drawn and the room was dark. Charlotte turned on the lights and looked around. This was a formal room and no likely place for the papers. She went into another room and saw what she sought, a desk upon which were piled books and papers. The girl picked up a book which was lying face downwards. It was "Treasure Island." Then she looked upon the shelves and discovered many volumes of true love and gay adventure. There was not a one in this favorite case which spoke of business. Instead, there was a well-worn "Huck Finn," a row of pirate stories, and another of detective fiction. Charlotte smiled when she saw "Lorna Doone" had been read many times.

Back with the papers, the girl went to her father.

"This will make Breen richer than he is," B. Dyer said. "Don't you think it is about time you make up your mind to marry him?"

"I have already made up my mind," Charlotte answered, "and it is not because of the money."

DAILY FASHION HINT

Prepared Especially for The Glendale Evening News

PARIS EXALTS SIMPLICITY

The whole world of fashion bows to the slim-line frock, and this model in cinder-voile is typical of what Paris is wearing. On either side of the oval neck at the front are groups of hand-trimmed tucks, and the short kimono sleeves are trimmed with self-bands. The front and back panels of the skirt extend above the narrow belt, but the side panels are content to be gathered at the upper edge and tucked their surplus length under at the hem. Medium size requires 4½ yards 36-inch material.

Pictorial Review Dress No. 1563. Sizes 16 to 20 years, and 34 to 44 inches bust. Price 35 cents.

FOR THE FASCINATING CREPES

The soft, supple crepes of exquisite coloring should be selected for this semi-formal frock. The delightful tone of the fabric is echoed in the fancy ribbon which outlines the V-shaped neck and flowing sleeves. The skirt is laid in plaits at each side-front, giving it a draped effect, the back and sides being gathered. Medium size requires 5½ yards 36-inch material.

Pictorial Review Blouse No. 1535. Sizes 34 to 48 inches bust. Price 35 cents.

Skirt No. 1530. Sizes 24 to 34 inches waist. Price 30 cents.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

What a delightful thing is a little child's fresh viewpoint in his interpretation of language. There is nothing more engaging than the quaint quirks and twists he gives to words and phrases in trying to voice his thoughts. It is, as someone has said, "The most touching kind of newness."

Bubbles and Sparks

I was reminded anew of this one day not long ago when a neighbor's three-year-old was spending the day with me. Her soft, for, with use and frequent washings, all brush bristles tend to soften (and must then be stiffened with ammonia). If I were you I would wash the brush several times in succession, drying well each time in the sun.

Mrs. H.—"Kindly print a recipe for face soap."

Answer—Good Toilet Soap: Dissolve one can of lye in one quart of water. Try out five pounds of mutton tallow until pure. Have this grease as cool as possible without congealing, then pour it gradually into the dissolved lye, beating constantly. Stir into this mixture four ounces of glycerin and one-half ounce of oil of bergamot (or oil of lavender if preferred). When blended, beat in two tablespoons each of powdered borax and ammonia. Whip hard, then turn into a pan lined with paper. Let harden and cut.

Tomorrow—Have You Made One of the New "Window Sets?"

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use your full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

That is why we have so many stilted and unnatural children in fiction. No labored adult wit can concoct a childish conversation with half the ingenuousness of the real thing. He gives himself away at once. His wit is so much less nimble. No grown-up could invent the questions hurled at me today by my small nephew. "Do horses have eyebrows, Auntie Ruth? And how do ducks kiss?" To date, I have not answered him. I am still dazed!

I hunt for a missing book and declare that I have looked for it several times without being able to locate it. Much more vivid and to the point is small Mary's plaint about her lost ball—"Twice already I didn't see it," she mourns.

Unbutton and Unskin

I tell my little niece that I will unbutton her shoe for her, and she, logically enough, asks if I will also "unskin" her orange. What one of us has not in our vocabulary an expression coined for us by some childish observer. Whenever I go window shopping I mind me of the small girl whose mother suspected her of patronizing a certain enticing baker shop on her way from school. "I sometimes go in there, Mother," she confessed, "but I more often speculate outside."

That, I think, is the most felicitous phrase of all. Write and tell me about your favorite bit of childish lore.

BEAUTY CHATS

EDNA KENT FORBES

M. L.—To reduce your double chin, throw the head far back and exercise all the muscles of the jaw and throat by means of any of the movements similar to chewing. Movements of rolling the head around the shoulders will also exercise the muscles under chin and reduce excessive fat. Massage the chin with the finger tips, but be careful not to bruise the flesh by too vigorous rubbing. An ice rub or dashes of very cold water should conclude the treatment.

Eczema—You should be under the care of a doctor. The dark circles around the eyes and mouth would indicate a sluggish liver, but since you have the skin trouble you cannot do much for yourself with simple remedies. It would be well if you could go to a hospital where they treat skin troubles, or be treated at one even if you cannot remain there as a patient.

V. G.—You can tint the stray grey hairs with henna so they will not show in the mass of brown hair. Many young women do this and find that the henna acts as a tonic, which cannot be said for any of the dyes.

Anxious—I should think that your habit of eating camphor balls would have led to very dangerous results before now. If you cannot stop it at once have a doctor take care of you until you can.

Margaret K.—Soak the hair in kerosene and bind it up over night in a towel. This will kill the active vermin. Shampoo several times the next day, and follow this treatment with a fine comb that is kept wet in vinegar. This will dislodge the shells that cling to the hair shafts.

Miss Bobby—Use a cleansing cream to dissolve the soil from the enlarged pores, after which remove it with hot, damp cloths. Close the pores again by dashing very cold water over the skin.

Puella—Instead of shampooing the hair every week, make it three weeks. In between shampoos remove the excessive oil by rubbing the roots of the hair with a soft towel, just as you would if you were drying the hair after a shampoo.

Tomorrow—The Lips

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

Vitamins, No. VIII.

In the winter when the green vegetables are not available, the winter vegetables should be more freely eaten than they are. With the larger consumption of the winter vegetables and whole milk and some of the following foods which I will list, there need not be any deficiency of the vitamins during the winter.

The yeast extracts on the market under various trade names are just as efficient as yeast for the anti-neuritic vitamin, and they add a very delicious flavor to soups and sauces.

Dried spinach is rich in the anti-neuritic or vitamin A and the anti-neuritic or vitamin B, and that can be secured in the winter months. Canned or dried tomatoes are rich in all the vitamins. Sprouted legumes (beans, peas, lentils), and the grains furnish a goodly amount of the anti-scurbic vitamin, and have been proved effective. Sprouted beans were used to help keep down scurvy in the Serbian Army during the war. The sprouted soy beans are used by the Chinese in their chop suey.

Seeds can be sprouted in the following manner: Punch a dozen holes in the bottom of a tin pan. Fill the pan half full of thoroughly washed seeds, then fill the pan with water. Keep covered and set in a warm place where the water may drain away. Refill the pan two or three times a day to keep the seeds moist. Allow the seeds to grow an inch or two and use in a salad, or cook very slightly.

Milk, butter, cream, cod liver oil, egg yolks, dried spinach, canned and dried tomatoes will furnish the anti-neuritic or the fat solution A (cod liver oil is very much more concentrated in vitamin A than any other food). Because the demand is not sufficient for us by some childish observer. Whenever I go window shopping I mind me of the small girl whose mother suspected her of patronizing a certain enticing baker shop on her way from school. "I sometimes go in there, Mother," she confessed, "but I more often speculate outside."

That, I think, is the most felicitous phrase of all. Write and tell me about your favorite bit of childish lore.

HEALTH HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I met a young man about two years my senior, and I loved him. He seemed all that a fellow should be. I went with him about two months and during that time I was the happiest I have ever been.

One day I took a foolish notion that I didn't care enough for him and so I asked him to stop coming and he accepted. The last night we were together he told me if I ever wanted him to come back he would be waiting. I know his heart was broken.

After going a few days without hearing or seeing him I knew how much he really meant to me. My heart is just broken. I try to go with other fellows, but I can't be happy. I love him so much. He is the first one I think of in the morning and the last one at night. He was so true to me, but I wouldn't see it when I had him. I have no one in the world but a brother, and it just seems that I will go crazy. What should I do?

WILD IRISH ROSE

You were certainly very foolish to let a whim cause you to lose such a good friend. It seems to me that under the circumstances it would be all right for you to write a note to the young man and tell him that you find you miss him very much and that you wish he would forget what you said and come back again. Do not talk of love, and do not fill your letter with apologies. Make it simple and short.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am engaged to a young man. He is always asking me to go with him to his home to meet his folks. I believe that his mother should have seen me before I go to his home to see him. Please advise me.

Your fiancé's mother ought to call on you before you go to her home. If she invited you herself.

TIMELY VIEWS WORLD TOPICS

"MODERN GIRL NOT HYPOCRITICAL," SAYS NOTED WOMAN AUTHOR

Much as the modern girl has been maligned, Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher, author of works on children and mothers, is convinced she is "less hypocritical and less harmful" than the girl of two decades ago. Mrs. Fisher believes coeducation to be, in a measure, responsible for this.

"In the west and in the few places in the east where it has been tried, coeducation has resulted in a freer, finer, less constrained relation between men and women," she said. In my own state of Vermont we have in Middlebury college that old fashioned relation between girls and boys which is partly the result of freer modern life and partly a survival from simple country life in an old-fashioned state. And in the more complex western state universities are energetic and independent type of womanhood is being developed.

"It seems to me that the American college girl of our day is less foolish than the girl of twenty years ago. I was much impressed on a recent visit to the west by the type of women at the University of Michigan and Northwestern.

"They seem to me to be less hypocritical and less harmful than the girl of two decades ago. When I was in college two decades ago, girls were too restrained. Most of us were obliged to be shy, to do many perfectly innocent things under cover, for there were so many persons ready and willing to criticize anything they regarded as stepping over the bounds.

"It may be true that since the war there has been too much freedom in the other direction and I think it is high time they did."

Don't take chances - take ICE!

Why do you place food in an open window? To keep it cool, of course. You know that warmth makes food spoil.

But do you also know that the temperature necessary to preserve most foods must be lower than 50 degrees? Do you know that the bacteria and dust laden air, which causes spoilage, has easy access to food kept in the open?

Don't rely upon the open window or the cooler. The only sure way to preserve food is to keep it in a refrigerator—at the proper temperature, free from dust and germs. Use ice every day.

CRIME AND FOOD SUPPLY RELATED

Hunger Breeds Revolution as Conservation Means Are Inadequate

According to a well-known sociologist, there is a definite relationship between crime and food supply. A country or community which has a sufficient supply of food does not experience the social unrest as does the country whose inhabitants are always on the verge of starvation. Hunger is the real mother of revolution.

Mexico, prior to the present administration, was a good example of this. The recent outbreak of brigandage in China is another. China is proverbially a hunger-stricken country, not through lack of industry on the part of Chinese farmers and food producers, but for the reason that, generally speaking, the science of food preservation in China is unknown. Ice is used only in large cities and is for the most part confined to European and American quarters. Food supplies cannot be conserved, and the result is famine, with its attending social unrest and acts of violence.

The fact that this country is comparatively free from such acts seems to bear out the theory. Probably there is no country in the world whose inhabitants are as well fed as the United States—no country whose people enjoy such an abundant supply of good food. Practically all classes understand at least the fundamental principles of food hygiene, and the practice of keeping foodstuffs fresh and pure by means of a well-iced refrigerator is common to the majority of American homes.

'DOLORES OF FOLLIES' WEDS She Is Now Wife of Millionaire Aviator

Kathleen Marie Rose Known As "Dolores of the Follies"

PARIS, June 12.—There's no question about it, Senor Ziegfeld's "Follies" is the greatest little matrimonial bureau in this or any other world.

For the "glorified" American girls have demonstrated time and time again that when it comes to leading bachelor and divorced millionaires to the altar they are in a class by themselves—even though in some instances the vows are forgotten before the echo dies away.

The latest of the glorified ones to forsake the nightly glorification for the dollars in million lots is Kathleen Marie Rose, better known as "Dolores of the Follies."

Kathleen tripped lightly to the altar here on the arm of William Tudor Wilkinson, millionaire aviator and former turfman.

Wilkinson disposed of his stables and came here some time ago to become an art collector.

Now he has become a husband.

The wedding, news of which just recently leaked out, was a very simple affair and the newlyweds now are at home in Wilkinson's palatial residence here.

Teachers Rally for National Convention

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—A "rush of business" was reported this week by the housing bureaus in the city and Oakland, taking care of the advance reservations of delegates and visitors to the National Education Association convention and World Conference on Education.

These two conventions will be in session in Oakland and San Francisco during the last of this month and the first of next. The earlier forecast of an attendance of 20,000 or more visitors is being sustained, according to the teachers' housing bureaus, by the volume of reservations that has marked the past week.

In addition to large delegations from all parts of the world there will be a number of special trains from the east, south and middle west. As an illustration of the world interest of the convention the housing bureau mail of the past few days has included reservations from Hortensia Valarezo, Ecuador; E. G. Valherber, South Africa; M. H. Juraak, Beirut, Syria; Christiania Stall von Holstein, Sweden, and Miss Marjorie Wise, England.

Fifty or more nations have officially signified their intention of sending delegates to the conventions. The conventions will discuss the part that education may play in helping nations to arrive at a mutual understanding of the problems of each and in this way lead to ultimate permanent world peace.

Richardson Back at Desk After Vacation

SACRAMENTO, June 12.—Governor Richardson returned Monday from the annual convention of the California Forestry Association in Yosemite Valley and prepared to dispose of the hundreds of bills awaiting executive action.

The governor has not as yet indicated his attitude on several of the important measures of the session, among them the anti-cropper contract act. This measure bars Japanese from evading the Anti-Asian Land law by entering into contract farm work for a percentage of the crops.

Ralphs Grocery Ad Run Monday Not Correct One

HERE'S a new conundrum, folks: When is an advertisement not an advertisement? The answer is easy: When that particular ad happens to be a week old. The Ralphs Grocery company ad, appearing in yesterday's columns of The Glendale Evening News, was written for market conditions of a week ago. It was given The Evening News by mistake. The copy appearing today is correct, so use it to effect such savings as are to be found at Ralphs, corner Broadway and Orange, this week.

TAX RECEIPTS IN MAY SHOW GAIN

Advances Range From 12 to 369 Per Cent, Says U. S. Collector

May receipts of federal taxes from sources that reflect general business conditions in Southern California shoot the Los Angeles district's commercial thermometer skyward, registering gains May, 1922, which range from twelve per cent to 369 per cent, according to a report made to Washington yesterday by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodell.

Manufacturers of auto trucks and auto wagons led the procession by paying taxes amounting to $21,876, as against $4,662 for May, 1922, a gain of 369 per cent. Collections of tax on telegraph and telephone messages were $39,092, compared with $12,789 for May a year ago, an increase of 206 per cent.

Capital stock tax, which is $1 on each $1,000 of capital stock over $5,000, brought in receipts of $17,812, a gain of 190 per cent. Manufacturers' tax on oleomargarine registered an increase of 172 per cent.

Stamps Show Total
Sales of documentary stamps, which are used on bonds, capital stock issues, and conveyances, were $136,292, as against $72,392 for May, 1922, an increase of eighty-eight per cent, which indicates remarkable expansion in business transactions of various kinds.

Makers of automobiles and motor cycles paid manufacturers' tax which showed a gain of fifty-four per cent.

In the amusement line, cabarets collected admission taxes amounting to $9,761, which, compared with May, 1922, presents a gain in attendance of forty-six per cent.

Non-alcoholic beverages produced a manufacturers' tax of $11,579, against $8,049 for last May, a gain of forty-four per cent, while the tax paid on real wine and whiskey increased sixty-two per cent.

Retail dealers paid $57,804 as tax on jewelry sales, compared with $40,766 for May, 1922, a gain of forty-two per cent. The tax paid represents sales amounting to $1,176,000.

Money From Movies
Motion picture theaters, and other places of amusement, collected for Uncle Sam $299,188 in admission tax, a gain of twelve per cent. The tax paid indicates that $30,000,000 was expended for amusements during the month.

As tax on dues and memberships, $36,976 was collected from country, golf and various social clubs, an increase of thirty-six per cent.

Manufacturers' excise tax receipts as a whole gained nineteen per cent, while miscellaneous tax collections, which include all receipts except income taxes, were $861,489, a gain of thirty-five per cent.

Taxes paid by manufacturers on tires and automobile accessories indicated manufacturers' sales of $1,183,160, and on candy manufacturers' sales of $508,380.

Nearly 100 normal schools will have sessions this summer.
